Oxford English Dict light(1) HOME HISTORY FAVORITES MORE

light(1) light<sup>1</sup> /lʌɪt/

NOUN

1 [mass noun] the natural agent that stimulates sight and makes things visible:
the light of the sun |
[in sing.] the lamps in the street shed a faint light into the room.

- [count noun] a source of illumination, especially an electric lamp:
a light came on in his room.
- (lights) decorative illuminations:
Christmas lights.
- [count noun] (usu. lights) a traffic light:
turn right at the lights.
- the amount or quality of light in a place:
the plant requires good light |
[count noun] in some lights she could look beautiful.
- Law the light falling on the windows of a house. See ancient lights.

Visible light is electromagnetic radiation whose wavelength falls within the range to which the human retina responds, i.e. between about 390 nm (violet light) and 740 nm (red). White light consists of a roughly equal mixture of all visible wavelengths, which can be separated to yield the colours of the spectrum, as was first demonstrated conclusively by Newton. In the 20th century it became apparent that light consists of energy quanta called photons which behave partly like waves and partly like particles. The velocity of light in a vacuum is 299,792 km per second.

2 [in sing.] an expression in someone's eyes indicating a particular emotion or mood:
a shrewd light entered his eyes.

- (lights) a person's opinions, standards, and abilities:
leaving the police to do the job according to their lights.

3 [mass noun] understanding of a problem or mystery; enlightenment:
she saw light dawn on the woman's face.

- spiritual illumination by divine truth.

4 an area of something that is brighter or paler than its surroundings:
sunshine will brighten the natural lights in your hair.
